

I believe number portability is good for the American consumer because it will stop the rapid expansion of Area Codes needed to keep up with growing technology needs for phone lines, new competition in phone service, and a growing population. It will also make consumers comfortable with choosing service based on quality and service, not the unwillingness to change their number and the inconveniences involved.